This short course explores the relationship between our beliefs about Jesus Christ and our potential for acting for justice and healing in a broken world. Drawing on a wide range of perspectives on Jesus Christ, across racial/ethnic, religious, and theological perspectives, we will wrestle together with the implications of what we believe about who Jesus was, what Jesus has done, and what we hope Jesus will return to do. We will combine short lectures, group discussion, and small group work so that each participant will have a chance to examine their own beliefs and learn about the beliefs of others…and consider the implications of those beliefs for how we relate to each other, our neighbors, and yes, our enemies.

Session 1: Course Recording
Session 2: Course Recording
Session 3: Course Recording
Session 4: Course Recording

For more information, visit our website: www.candlerfoundry.emory.edu