This 5-week course explores the theological and ethical dimensions of the Ten Commandments. We will examine the historical meaning of each commandment, as well as how they are applied and commented upon in the rest of Scripture. Emphasis will be placed on how the Ten Commandments function to cultivate a "good neighborhood" of justice and compassion in which all members of society, especially the vulnerable and marginalized, can flourish. We also will consider the place of the Ten Commandments in American culture, including debates about whether it should be displayed in courtrooms or other public places.
